Elkhorn Grandview Middle School	Purple Hands Rally	Each year Grandview holds a "Purple Hands Rally" in October. This is where we bring awareness to ending violence and bullying in our school and community. We have an assembly where students take a pledge to not use their hands or words for hurting themselves or others. RESPECT also comes out and does a play on bullying for this cause. This is what the grant money would be used for. This benefits our entire school as we bring attention to something important. Students learn better when they feel safe and we believe this helps establish a safe school environment for our students.	Kyle Peterson	6th-8th	$345
Elkhorn Grandview Middle School	HALE differentiation reading books	These books are used to provided differentiation to reading units for High Ability Students. Due to the increase in enrollment at Grandview more books are needed. The Peter Pan books will be used for new unit that will enrich and enhance the district required book Tuck Everlasting. Dirty Wicked Omaha will be used as differentiation in an American History unit. Thank you!	Katherine Griffen	6th-8th	$1,522
Elkhorn Grandview Middle School	Teaching Through the Arts: Elkhorn Grandview Middle School	Approval of this grant would keep the tradition of the fine arts activity that was established at Elkhorn Middle School six years ago. This being the second year EGMS will be open, we would like to keep the tradition going for the students. This activity gives students experience in the performing arts before they are given more choices in which to participate at the high school level. It also gives them confidence in the arts before they are asked to participate at a more competitive level. In addition to helping students' future, this activity will also benefit students now. Socially, this activity will allow students to make new friends and commit to a group. This will teach students teamwork and working together for a common goal. Academically, this will improve student confidence in classroom participation and public speaking in class. Because students will need to remain in good academic standing to participate in the play, students will have a continual commitment to school work and academic excellence.	Joseph Timmerman	6th-8th	$1,500
